

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

THE ELECTRA is one of the strongest and most instructive examples of the realism of EURIPIDES. His object was to excite interest, not by distant grandeur like AESCHYLUS, nor by ideals however touching and poetic like SOPHOCLES, but by bringing real men and women on the stage, with real human passions and feelings, as his countrymen saw them every day in Athens. The strong side of this realism is clearly the 'touch of nature;' the weak side is the danger of its losing all effect by becoming commonplace and undignified. This play has passages which illustrate both tendencies.

There are many delicate touches of natural feeling, many striking displays of passion; the recognition of Orestes, though inferior to that in the IPHIGENIA, is full of beauties; and the curse of Aegisthus is very finely written. On the other hand, there is something repulsive in the incongruity of Electra being married to a farm labourer; all the characters, from time to time, talk in a commonplace strain; and the satire on Aeschylus in the fourth scene is both unworthy and irrelevant. But, on the whole, the play has been rather too hardly treated by the critics.

The plot is as follows:-

CLYTAEMNESTRA, having treacherously murdered her husband, AGAMEMNON, on his return from Troy, has married her lover Aegisthus, and rules Argolis from the palace at Mycenae. Orestes is in foreign lands; and Electra, whose love for her father might be awkward, is safely married to a poor but nobleminded tiller of the soil. All seems well for the queen.

But ORESTES returns, bidden by the Delphic oracle to slay

PREFACE.

her. He and PYLADES reach Argolis (and the cottage of ELECTRA, though they know it not,) at daybreak. Here the play opens with ORESTES' short address to PYLADES, announcing his night-visit to his father's tomb, and his purpose. [Scene 1.]

ELECTRA discovers the two travellers lurking near her cottage, and at first she takes them for thieves. ORESTES, however, informs her that he brings news of her brother, and inquires after her. She joyfully tells him all her case, and plans of vengeance, which he promises to report. [Scene 2.]

The husband of ELECTRA returns, and hearing who the strangers are, courteously invites them in. ORESTES warmly admires virtue in such humble rank. [Scene 3.]

An old servant of the family arrives with some provisions, and tells her that some one has been visiting her father's tomb. Presently ORESTES and PYLADES come in, and the old man recognises the former. [Scene 4.]

The brother and sister now contrive their plot. [Scene 5.] AEGISTHUS is slain by ORESTES under pretence of joining in the sacrifice which the former is celebrating. [Scene 6.]

ORESTES returns to his sister with the body, having revealed his real name to the Argives. ELECTRA utters her famous curse against the dead man. [Scene 7.]

CLYTAEMNESTRA, in answer to an appeal from ELECTRA, who asks her to come as she has recently given birth to a child, visits the cottage in state. There (behind the scenes) she is murdered, and the scene is then shifted, showing the brother and sister standing over the corpses of the guilty pair. [Scene 8.]

SCENE I.

THE RETURN OF ORESTES.

The cottage where ELECTRA and her husband live, in a rural district of Argolis. The stream Inachus is seen in the background, and over the hills behind the day is breaking. The ground slopes steeply down with rude steps at the sides, from the higher level of the stage to the lower level of the orchestra.

Enter Orestes and Pylades, girt with swords, in the guise of way-worn travellers, with luggage on their backs. They stop as they are approaching the cottage and put down their baggage, and Orestes turns to his friend and says:—

ΟΡ. ORESTES AND ELECTRA.

The same. ORESTES and PYLADES seated at a little distance from the path, not clearly in view.

The Chorus of Argeian maidens are in the orchestra, and Electra is singing a song to them from the stage about herself and her sorrows. Suddenly she chances to catch sight of Orestee and Pylades, who from their retired spot are listening intently to her song.

ELECTRA is dressed in the commonest and coarsest garb of a labourer's wife.

She starts back; then recovering herself, she says, in a (hurried) tone of fear, pointing at the two figures:—

- ΗΛ. οἴμοι, γυναῖκες· ἐξέβην θρηνημάτων· ξένοι τινὲς παρ' οἶκον οἴδ' ἐφεστίους εὐνὰς ἔχοντες ἐξανίστανται λόχου· φυγῆ, σὰ μὲν κατ' οἶμον, ἐς δόμους δ' ἐγώ, φῶτας κακούργους ἐξαλύξωμεν ποδί.

THE HUSBANDMAN.

ELECTRA is standing before ORESTES and PYLADES with clasped hands and eager air of entreaty. ORESTES is moved, but silent.

Suddenly enter the husbandman (to whom ELECTRA is married). When he catches sight of the group he stops short, rather surprised and hurt.

Then he turns to ELECTRA and says, with an injured air, pointing at ORESTES and PYLADES:—

SCENE IV.

THE RECOGNITION.

The stage is empty. An old man in a tattered garment appears in the orchestra, approaching the steps which lead up to the stage. He carries a stuff, and a basket of provisions, containing meat, cheeses, and wine.

He looks about for ELECTRA, and then proceeds slowly to mount the steps.

The Chobus in the orchestra, singing a song of triumph. Enter Obestes and Pylades, the former carrying the bleeding head of Aegisthus. Attendants behind carry the body on a litter. As he approaches the cottage, Electba comes out with two garlands in her hand, radiant. She advances towards him, and says:—

SCENE VIII.

FINAL VENGRANCE.

Enter slowly the chariot of CLYTAEMNESTRA, with gorgeous trappings. She herself is seated in the centre, with her Trojan maidens round her. When the chariot stops, CLYTAEMNESTRA turns to her maidens and bids them dismount. ELECTRA stands humbly in the background, waiting to receive her.

[She follows her into the cottage.]

[The CHORUS then sing an ode, which is interrupted by screams, and suddenly from within comes the piteous appeal of CLYTAEMNESTRA] ὧ τέκνα, προς θεών μη κτάνητε μητέρα.

[More screams are heard, and then silence. The scene representing the cottage then turns on a pivot (a device called the ἐκκύκλημα), and displays the interior of the chamber, with the dead bodies of Aegisthus and Clytaemnestra, and Orestes and Electra standing silent and solemn over them.]

NOTES.

SCENE 1.

- 3. θαυμάζω, prop. 'to wonder,' here 'to respect.'
- πράσσοντα, 'faring,' its usual sense, and explained by παθών, &c.
- 5. κατέκτα, old strong agrist from κατακτείνω. The later form is -έκτανον. $\chi \dot{\eta} = \kappa a \dot{\eta}$.
- μυστηρίων. The 'secrets' of the god means, of course, the oracular recesses.
- νυκτός, gen. of comprehension, 'in the night.' νυκτί, the dat.
 means 'on the night,' where it is regarded as a point of time; the gen. expresses the whole, at some period of which the event happens.
- ἀπάρχεσθαι, prop. 'to begin the sacrifice.' The hair was offered as a first offering. 'I made an offering of my hair.'
- μηλείου φόνου, lit. 'of slaughter of sheep,' i.e. 'of slaughtered sheep.'
- πόδα, a kind of cognate acc. with intrans. βαίνω. cf. 328, note.
- 14. δυοῦν ἄμιλλαν ξυντιθείς, 'joining my two-fold effort,' i.e. uniting in one enterprise two aims, viz., to find Electra and so avenge his father, and also to escape easily if discovered (ἴν' ἐκβάλω).
- 15. ἐκβάλλω, 'speed out,' intransitive. This usage is frequent with ἐμβάλλω and εἰεβαλλω and προεβάλλω, but very rare with this verb.

The subjunctive is to be noticed, after the historic tense ἀφικόμην. The strict sequence would be ἐκβάλοι μ , but as it was the present purpose of the speaker, ἐκβάλω is quite logically correct.

- νιν like σφε is accus. of the pronoun, and may be sing. or plur., masc., fem., or neut.
- 19. συνέργατιν [έργ- 'work'] 'a help-mate.'
- 22. τρίβος [τρίβ- tri- (Lat.) 'rub'] 'a path.'
- 24. ἱστορέω, 'to enquire.'

SCENE 2.

- 27. ἐφεστίους, 'close to our house.' ἐὐνάς, 'lair,' lit. 'couch.'
- 28. λόχου (λέγ- 'lay,') 'ambush.'
- 29. οίμος, 'path.'
- 30. ἐξαλύξωμεν, subj. in 1 pers. as imper. called Hortative.
- τρέσης. Observe the usage: in Greek μή has pres. imperor aor. subjunctive. They said μὴ ποίει οτ μὴ ποιήσης, but not μὴ ποίησον.
- πίτ-νω, 'to fall' (stem πετ-, nasalized, instead of the common reduplicated form πίπτω = πι-πετ-ω), hence 'to supplicate.'
- 33. Notice the double comparative, like 'Most Highest.'
- 36. $\xi \iota \phi \dot{\eta} \rho \eta s$ [stem $d\rho$ 'fit'] 'girt with a sword.' $\lambda o \chi \dot{a} \omega$, 28.
- 37. i.e. 'you will agree that I am right in what I do.'
- μισθόν, acc. in apposition to the sentence or act. Like Ἑλένην κτάνωμεν Μενελέφ λύπην πικράν, where the λύπη is the slaughter.
- 43. τοῦτο, the happiness.
- 45. συμφοράs, gen. after ὅπως, of definition, lit. 'how in the matter of fortune.' It may be called the specifying gen.
- 46. ξηρόν, prop. 'dry,' so 'gaunt,' 'haggard.'
- 47. συντήκω (τακ- 'melt') 'waste away.' γε, see note, 72.
- 48. σκυθίζω, 'to treat as a Scythian does;' and as the Scythians

- scalped their slain enemies, this phrase may be rendered, 'shorn as by Scythian razor.'
- 49. Lit. 'Does thy brother wound thee?' . . . i.e. 'dost thou grieve for thy brother?'
- 51. i.e. 'And are not you as dear to him?'
- 52. 'I must love him from afar, and not close at hand.' i.e.
 'Our love is faithful, but it is the separation I lament.'
- 53. ἐκ τοῦ, 'from what?' i.e. 'Why?'
- τηλορός [ὅρος, boundary], 'far away,' poet. form of the commoner τηλουρός.
- 59. ἄξιος δόμων, 'is a fit dweller in this house.'
- 62. i.e. 'Women follow their husbands' wishes, not their children's.' So Orestes clearly understands it, for he asks why Aegisthus put this slight upon her. And if so φίλαι must mean 'are friends,' in the sense 'love.'
- 64. ἀσθενῆ, i.e. τέκνα, children who, being of low birth, should not be able to call him to account. So Orestes explains in his next question.
- 65. δηθεν suggests that the motive is that of Aegisthus. It is especially used in this way, often (obviously) ironically, to give not the speaker's view, but the presumed or alleged view of others.

[MSS. here read $\delta\hat{\eta}\theta\epsilon$ maidas, but $\delta\hat{\eta}\theta\epsilon$ is unknown. If we suppose the text the true reading, it may have been first altered to maidas, suggested by plural $d\sigma\theta\epsilon\nu\hat{\eta}$, and then falsely corrected into the MS. reading for metrical reasons.]

68. """/pov, the aorist, where we should use the present. The quick-minded Greek counts a thing past the instant it has been done. cf. ""/"/μωξα, 55.

alσχρόν γ' είπας, i.e. 'it is a shame to doubt him.'

οὐ γὰρ νῦν ἀκμή; 'is it not high time now?' [for him to come and wreak his retribution].

ακμή [ακ- sharp] 'the point of time,' lit.

- 72. γε, 'at least,' assents (in conversation) to a question, limiting at the same time or further specifying the assent. So it may be rendered with a 'Yes.' Thus, here; 'Would you slay her?' 'Ay, with the same axe!' τφ for ψ; an archaism. The old article and relative were one.
- λέγω, deliberative subjunctive, 'may I tell?' This use is well known also in Latin. τἀπὸ σοῦ, 'thy purpose.'
- 80. άρχαῖος, 'in days of old.'
- 82. ἔκυρσεν ὡς ἔκυρσεν, a euphemism, to avoid saying the fearful thing. 'He found—what he found.' [cf. O.T. 1376].
- θυραίω», 'strangers' woes,' [θύρα, 'door']. This momentary forgetfulness of the part he is playing is very skilful.
- 87. λέγοιμ' ἄν, lit. 'I would speak,' a less obtrusive form of the future, 'I will speak.' (There are several uses of conditional due to Greek delicacy, e.g., χωροῖς ἀν εἴσω for χώρει.)
- 89. κινείς μῦθον, 'move me to speak.'
- 91. αὐλίζομαι [αὐλή, 'courtyard'] 'to live.'
- 92. πίνος, 'filth.' βριθ- 'load.'
- 94. κερκίς, 'shuttle.' ἐκ δωμάτων, 'after the palace' I once had.
- 96. φορουμέτη, 'fetching home.' This translation gives the reflex force of the Middle.
- 97. ἀνέορτος [έορτή, 'feast'] Ιρῶν. This is gen. of want, just like χορῶν, especially common with negative adjectives.
- 98. 'Phrygian spoils' probably means gorgeous cushions and rugs. [Notice the anapaests in proper names in 98, 99.]
- 100. στατίζουσι, 'are stationed,' a more formal word than έστασι.
- 101. 'Ιδαῖα φάρη... 'their Trojan mantles clasped with golden pins.' The accus., as in 'suspensi loculos laevo,' 'os impressa toro,' &c. It is very common in Greek. The participle here may be either middle ('having clasped') or the elastic use of the passive with the objective accusative.

- 103. σέσηπεν, 'is rotting.' The blood will not sink into the ground: for it is murder, and calls for vengeance.
- 104. πατρί, dat. after ταὐτά, the usual idiom.
- 106. [yaupo- 'exult,' yaf = exultation, joy, cf. gau-deo].
- 108. κλών, 'a branch.' [κλάω, 'to break'].

- 150. λιμόν, 'famine,' a fine metaphor.
- 154. ἡ τοῖς ἔχουσι μηδέν; put by a regular Euripidean shifting of phrase for τῷ ἔχειν μηδέν. Thus it would be intelligible,

- though inaccurate, in English to say, 'Can we tell the noble by those who are poor,' instead of saying, 'by poverty.'
- 155. κακόν, adject. expressing the result of the verb; this is called the Proleptic (anticipating) use of the adjective. Thus in English we say, 'I struck him dead.'
- 156. Strength is no test, any more than wealth.

- 165. τοιοῦτοι, 'the noble.'
- 167. ἀγάλματ' ἀγορᾶς, figure heàds, as we say; fine externally, but soulless. Lit. 'adornments of the market-place.' δόρυ μένει, 'withstands the battle.'
 - Even in battle it is courage, not strength, which wins.
- 170. 'This man's reception within his house.' τοῦδ' ἀνδρός, the ordinary gen. of the subject. δόμων, the specifying gen.
- 174. χαίρειν ἐῶ, lit. 'I let it prosper': idiom for 'I pass it by,'

- 178. ρυσφ [ρυ- draw], 'wrinkled.'

- 186. 'Have they reminded you' of past horrors.
- 189. ἀνόνητα [ὀνε- 'help,' 'profit'], 'in vain.'

- 190. Notice the double augment of ἀνέχομαι. τοῦτό γ', 'this,' that I should let him lie there and not do my best for him.

- 194. μυρσίνας, 'myrtle boughs.'

- 212. δμοπτέρους, 'of like hair,' by a natural and pretty metaphor.
- 214. άρβύλη, 'sandal.' These two methods of recognition occur in the Choephoroe of Aeschylus; and this passage, though certainly forced and inappropriate as a sly satire on Aeschylus, is a striking example of Euripides' determined realism.
- 216. κραταίλεως, 'rugged,' 'rocky.' [κρατ- λαξ-].
- 217. ἔκμακτρον [μακ- 'knead'], 'the print.'

- 293. συνίημι, especially used of understanding words, or obscure signs; so of taking a hint or implied sarcasm. Note the participial construction with verbs of knowing; nominative (οδσα) because it refers to the subject of γιγνώσκει.
- 297. καὶ μήν, (as usual) of a new point. 'Yes, and the other fortune will arrange.'
- 298. δυοῖν ὄντοιν, 'to us two,' lit. 'being two,' ὧν being constantly thus added to numbers (εἶs ὧν), where in English it is superfluous.
- 300. λεχώ [λεχ-, λεγ-, 'lie'], lit. 'a woman in childbirth.'
 'Say that I am delivered of a son.'
- 302. δέχ' ἡλίουs, for after ten days the sacrifice was offered to Artemis the deliverer (εἰλείθυια).
- 306. ναί is an answer to the sense rather than the grammar of the question. 'She does care.' αξίωμα, 'the rank:' it was such a degradation that the blood of the Atridae should mingle with that of a husbandman.
- 307. 'Again I bring my word to the turning-post,' i.e., again I ask, 'how will that effect her death?'

- 330. ἀμφήκει [ἀμφ- ακ-]. The γάρ is singularly misplaced here. Might we read ΓΑΡΗΠΑΡ for ΚΑΡΑΓΑΡ? Besides, the heart is more natural than the head.
- 331. 'Make it (ξίφος) ready.'
- 332. πύστις [πυθ-].
- 333. The δλολυγή was the cry of joy, as this shews.

- 351. μελος, 'strain.'
- 352. σφαγήν, &c., 'This thy tidings is death to me,' i.e., 'I must slay myself,' as she vowed, 338. σφαγήν is the predicate to which τήνδε is attracted.
- 353. τρανώς, 'clearly '[prob. from τρα-, 'pierce'].
- 355. φαῦλον, 'light,' 'easy.'

- 358. [dovea, 258.]
- 362. δυσ-γνωσί-a, 'difficulty of recognising.' 'I was slow to know.'
- 366. ἢλθές ποτε, 'thou hast come at last.' For the Greek tendency to the acrist if the thing is the least past, cf. 55, &c. See Index.
- 367. ρυθμός [ρυ-, flow], 'course.'

- 400. βουθυτεῖν (Grant me) to ... the regular infinitive of prayer.
- 402. ως νῦν; he means 'well.' But there is skilful irony in the unconscious words, with the avenger close at hand.
- 404. γεγωνίσκων, 'uttering aloud' [supposed to be onomatop (i.e., formed from sound), from γω, exclamation, HO!].

- 406. δρθήν, 'straight' (not curved).
 - The process of sacrifice is told here with unusual fulness. The sacrificer wore a garland (373), purified himself and his assistants (386), then washed his hands with holy water (387), sprinkled the victim's head and altar with salt-meal (399), cut off a lock from its forehead [called also κατάρχεσθαι] (406), threw it into the fire (407), drew back its head and cut the throat (408), flayed and dissected it (419—421).
- 410. ἐκ τῶν καλῶν . . . εἶναι τόδ', 'that this is one of their distinctions.' After this one expects infin. ἀρταμεῖν. But the change to the indefinite, ὅστις ἀρταμεῖ, is natural and common. Iph. Taur. 616.

- 412. ὀχμάζω, 'curb' [lit. 'hold fast,' ἐχ-].

- 414. Δωρίδα, i.e., κοπίδα, 432, 'a Doric' knife. The use of local adjectives as substantives is immensely common, cf. magnet, bayonet, cambric, damask, arras, gauze, sherry, port, quince, guinea, diaper, ermine, &c. (cf. Trench on "Study of Words," 122).
- 415. πόρπαμα, 'a clasped robe,' πορπη [πέρ- pierce], 'buckle.'
- 420. δίανλος was the double lap of the race-course. (ἐππίους, because usually only horses raced twice over it). [From aὐλός, 'pipe' = 'double channel.'] διήνυσε, acrist of habit, 'accomplishes.'
- iρá, 'the victim,' to see the omens. ἀνεῖτο, lit. 'relaxed,' i.e., 'flayed,' 'stripped.'

- 426. Aegisthus answers, ὀρρωδώ . . . [Lat. horreo]. τί χρημ', 'why?'
- 430. πενστηρίαν [θοίνην, cognate acc.], θοινασόμεσθα, ' to feast—a feast of sacrificial inquiry' [πυθ-] seems the meaning: i.e., to complete the sacrifice by fully examining the entrails, and so learning the gods' will. ὅπως, with fut. is constantly nearly a final; here, as Ran. 1121, it is quite so.
- Φθιάδα, from Phthia, S.E. of Thessaly, whence they professed to come, 376.
- 432. χέλυς [lit. 'tortoise' (cf. chelys, lyre made from shell); so from its shape], 'the chest.'
- 436. σφονδύλους, joints of the back-bone.
- 438. ἀσπαίρω, 'be convulsed,' σφαδάζω 'writhe,' both from stem σπα- cf. 'spasm.' [ἐσφάδαζε is Valckenaer's bold correction of ἢλάλαζε, only used of joyful cries, 450.]
- 440. μάχεσθα inf. after πολλοί.
- 441. ἀντίπρφρα, 'face to face,' 'before their faces.'
- 443. ὀπάων [έπ- 'follow'], 'attendants.'
- 447. κάμακες, prop., 'poles,' so 'spears.'
- 452. alμa, &c. 'And to the dead man now Blood has been paid for blood, a bitter debt.' δανεισμός is properly 'the loan.' The idea is of the loan coming back in the form of repayment.

SCENE 7.

- 456. ἄνδημα [ἀνα-δέω], 'band' or 'circlet.'
- 457. $\epsilon \kappa \pi \lambda \epsilon \theta \rho os$. 6 plethra = 200 yards.

- 460. παρασπιστής [ἀσπίς], 'comrade in war.'
- 468. ὡς δέ τῷ 'and that we may put before anyone, clearly to know this,' lit., i.e., 'and to give clear proof of this.' [Paley's explanation of MSS. is perverse. σαφ' εἰδέναι must be result of proof, not of mere statement.]
- 471. σκῦλον, 'spoil.'
- 472. σκόλοψ, 'stake.'
- 475. τί χρῆμα; 'what' art thou ashamed to say? And the answer is ὑβρίζειν, clearly therefore alluding, not to Orestes' proposed treatment of the corpse, but to the desire for liberating her soul against Aegisthus by vindictive speech.
- 476. φθύνος. First 'envy,' 'jealousy.' Then it is used to describe the peculiar feeling of 'jealousy' supposed by Greeks to be felt by gods against those who were overfortunate [cf. Polykrates] or those who misused their good luck. So the fear of this φθόνος would lead a person not to triumph over the fallen, as here. So Demosthenes uses it (327, 13) as deterring him from praising himself even as much as facts justify him in doing.

Here (as 715 means men, not gods, cf. next line) the same feeling is extended to men, as naturally sympathising with the judgment of the gods.

- 478. dρεs- 'please.' ψεy- 'blame.'
- 479. ἄσπονδος [σπονδαί, 'a truce' (lit. 'libations')], 'implacable.'

- 492. ἐς τοῦτο ἀμαθίας, 'to such a pitch of folly.'
- 494. ἐς σὲ μὲν δη. You trusted the faith of a woman whose very faith to you was unfaithfulness to another! A fine sentiment, developed in the next four lines.
- 498. ¿κεί, towards her real husband. of is the reflexive personal.

- 499. 'Most wretched was thy life, tho' men knew it not.'
- 503. ὁ τῆς γυναικός. As the French say of a man eclipsed by his wife, 'le mari de sa femme.'
- 508. ἐπίσημα, 'noble.' μείζω, 'above him' in rank.
- 509. οὐδεὶς λόγος, 'there is no talk of,' i.e., he is of no account.

- 515. μετά σκαιῶν, 'with evil men.'

- 519. βημα, 'stage.'
- 521. $\gamma \rho a \mu \mu \dot{\eta}$, 'the line' from which the race started and to which (as here) it returned.
 - The best instance of this well-known Greek sentiment is the end of Oedip. Tyrannus.

- 525. i.e. 'let us try some other means.'

- 539. μὴ ἀμύνων contains a condition: 'if thou dost not aid thy father.'
- 541. οὐ πεσεῖ would be 'wilt thou not fall' = 'fall.'
 So οὐ μὴ πεσεῖ, 'wilt thou not refrain from falling' = 'don't fall.'
 - This is entirely different from the elliptical où $\mu\dot{\eta}$ with the subjunctive. Cf. 162.
- 542. 'Shall I set the same snare for her?' ὑποστήσω may be fut. or delib. subj.
- 544. πρόβλημα, 'a task.'
- 546. χήδύ = καὶ ἡδύ.

SCENE 8.

- 547. ἀπήνη, 'chariot.'
- 551. ἐξαίρετα, 'chosen spoils' which the king took. παιδὸς ἡν ἀπώλεσα is Iphigenia who was sacrificed to the expedition.
- 555. The position of μακαρίαs is unusual. It is outside the article and yet not a predicate. It seems possible (from one or two instances, Cho. 487, Orest 86, though both are doubtful) that this transposition was occasionally allowed in formal addresses, like the old English 'good my lord:' or possibly μακαρίαs agrees with σοῦ understood from σῆs, like τὰμὰ δυστήνου καιά.
- 557. Electra's bitter answer is most telling. Clyt. repulses her filial offer by a cold 'Thank you, don't trouble: I have slaves.' Electra replies, 'Slaves? I am a slave too, outcast and orphan.'
- 560. 'Yet such was the cruelty of Agamemnon to Iphigenia.'
- 562. Sense: if it had been to save his city or other children [as Erechtheus sacrificed a daughter], it would have been excusable; but it was done for a frail woman and a feeble man.
- 565. μάργος, 'passionate,' 'weak.'
- 568. She puts a parallel case, with the sexes changed; and the absurdity of it is the measure of the injustice to women which prevails. 'For I (she thinks) should have been justly killed if I had done so; why not he?'
- 571. Ordex: εἶτα οὐ χρῆν τὸν μὲν (Agamemnon), κτείναντα τάμὰ θανεῖν.
- 573. 'I turned that way (δδὸν), by which alone it was passable, namely, to his foes.' ἦνπερ is cognate acc.
- 576. dντίθες, i.e., 'refute.' Lit. 'set [your arguments] against [mine].'

- 578. 'Just: but a wise [φρενήρης- ἀρ- 'fit,' lit. 'fitted with sense'] woman will not press for her rights.'
- 581. οὐδ' εἰς ἀριθμὸν . . . λόγων, lit. 'she does not even enter into the count of my words,' i.e., 'I cannot take account of her.'
- 587. φέρει, as MSS., in spite of Porson's emendation, φέρειν. ἄξιον, 'fit' praise [not ironical, as Paley]; but beauty is not all, and in character she and Helen were 'true sisters, both light women,' as Electra says.
- 592. σκῆψω, 'a pretext,' [lit. 'thing on which you lean.' Cf. σκῆπτρον].
- 593. 'They don't know you as I do.' [I have taken Porson's τσαστ σ' εδ for MSS., τσαστ εδ. The acc. is necessary].

- 596. ξανθόν, 'yellow,' κάτοπτρον, 'a mirror.'
- 598. ἐς κάλλος, 'for beauty,' i.e., to look beautiful. διάγραφε, 'cancel,' 'cross out,' a fine word. She means, 'strike her off the list' as a bad woman.
- 602. εἰ.. εἰτυχοῖ, 'if ever ... were fortunate,' equivalent to indefinite 'whenever,' as in all languages is possible and is common in Greek.
- 603. ήσσονα, 'worsted.' Cf. ήσσᾶσθαι.
- 605. παρείχε impers., 'it offered,' 'there was a chance.' [so used absol. καλῶς παρασχόν. Thuc. 5, 14, &c.] σωφρονείν (in its original sense of 'self-restraint') 'to be pure.'
- 610. τὰ γὰρ κακά.... ἔχει. Lit. 'Vice gives to virtue an example and a spectacle.' The meaning seems clear, though (as so often in Eurip.) the expression is a little confused. She means that an exposure of vice makes men study virtue, and point to it as an example.

- 611, sqq. The argument is: Even granted that Ag. had wronged you, why did not you content yourself with slaying him, and then give us our inheritance? Instead of this, you sold our portion to Aegisthus as the wages of sin.

- 629. èµoi, dat. of agent after pf. pass. as usual. The perfect suggests so much more the effect remaining (for the person) than the act done (by the person), that the Recipient Dative is the most natural case to use.
- 630. πεπαυμένη, 'recovered' from thy birth pangs.
- 636. κομίζεσθαι [to bring for one's self, 614], 'fetch home.'
- 639. dypiov, 'fierce.' Sense: Why have you not mollified him towards me?
- 640. τρόποι, 'his character.'

 αἰθάδης [αἰτός, and άδ- stem σ̄Γαδ- suavis, 'sweet'],

- 650. βρέφος, 'child.'
- 651. iδρύω, 'to settle' [root éδ- sed-]. It is regularly used in the passive, as here, with acc. probably cognate. φίλων, gen. of want, after negative ἀγείτονα.
- 653. ἀριθμόν, 'to sacrifice (in honour of) the accomplished number of days,' probably nine, as Paley suggests; and so the tenth was the day of sacrifice. The acc. is again cognate.
- 657. φάτνως, 'the manger,' 'stable.' ὄχους is here used for the horses chiefly.
- 660. µo, Ethical Dative, 'I beg.'
- 661. alθαλόω, 'soil,' 'blacken.' [alθ- 'burn,' alθήρ, Alθίοψ, Αἴτνη, aestus, &c.]
- 663. ἐνάρχεσθαι κανοῦν is 'to begin the offering by taking the barley (406 n.) from the basket.' Translate 'The sacrifice is begun, the blade is whetted.'
- 664. ταῦρον is Aegisthus.
